

An expansion unit capable of being detachably mounted to an expansion bay of an information processing apparatus, the expansion unit including an imaging device, a moving member moving the imaging device between a state in which the imaging device is stored inside the expansion unit and a state in which the imaging device projects outwardly from the expansion unit, and a member capable of changing a direction in which the imaging device is pointed when the imaging device is extended from the expansion unit, the imaging device being detachable from the expansion unit and supportable in such detached state.

5
10